The following “very common” (may affect more than 1 in 10 people) side effects can be seen after the use of MenQuadfi® in:

- children 12-23 months of age: tenderness, redness, or swelling where the injection was given, feeling irritable, crying, loss of appetite, feeling drowsy.
- children (2 years of age and older), adolescents, adults and the elderly: pain where the injection was given, muscle pain, headache, generally feeling unwell.

Other side-effects that can happen in any age-group, incidence “not known” (cannot be estimated from available data): hypersensitivity including anaphylaxis, fits (convulsions) with or without fever.

If you have a troublesome symptom or side effect after receiving MenQuadfi® that is not listed here or becomes bad enough to interfere with your daily activities, talk to your healthcare provider. MenQuadfi® is a vaccine that is used for the prevention of invasive meningococcal disease caused by Neisseria meningitidis serogroups A, C, W and Y in individuals 12 months of age and older. MenQuadfi® does not prevent N. meningitidis serogroup B disease. Persons with an allergy to active substances or any of the ingredients in MenQuadfi® should not receive the vaccine. Persons with a known history of Guillain-Barré Syndrome should not receive MenQuadfi® unless the potential benefits outweigh the risks of administration. As with all vaccines, 100% protection cannot be guaranteed.
